A pioneer brave enough to corral a wild dog. A writer who chronicled Oakland County pioneer history. The inventor of a hand-powered carriage. A bibliophile who volunteered as a librarian—for 25 years. An architect who designed churches and a life of her own. These inspiring women and many others have helped shape the history of Farmington and Farmington Hills, Michigan. Farmington: A Women's History weaves more women's stories into the fabric of our published history.
