A Mother's Tears: Poems of Heartbreak, Loss, and Discovery Claire Ann Stevenson

This unique and beautiful collection of poems, written from the depths of a mother's broken heart, will touch and comfort others suffering the most devastating loss of all, the death of a child. A year and a half after the tragic loss of her son, poetry started flowing through her. The release of her pain and anguish provided through this amazing outpouring helped facilitate her healing, and is offered here to help others heal. Giving words to a grief that has no words, she will touch your heart. Those suffering similar loss will find hope and strength in her poems.

What readers are saying about the poetry in this book -

"As I read your book cover to cover, I was unable to stop the tears. Being a mother who lost her daughter . . . , I feel everything that you feel. . . . I have felt everything you wrote as if I wrote it myself. Thank you for putting feelings into words that I can keep."

"I absolutely love your poems. . . . Thanks again for sharing your love and heartache for your son through your poetry to help other mothers who have lost a child."

"You have truly been blessed with a talent for writing poetry. I have sat here and cried while reading each one of your poems."

"Claire - you certainly have a beautiful gift with your poems. I'm sure that a lot of . . . people . . . get a lot of comfort from them - I know I do. . . . They (your words) have a healing touch - you help those who can't express what they want to say."

"Your poems are inspiring and express what is in the hearts of anyone who has lost a loved one."

"Just wanted to say I read your poems and how beautiful they are. . . . God bless you for sharing your grief and pain in ways that some of us feel but cannot put onto paper."

"Your poems have touched me so much. . . . Thanks for your poems."

"I have . . . read and read and read, identifying with every word you've written."
