Gifted students have the potential to learn material earlier and faster, to handle more complexity and abstraction, and to solve complex problems better. This potential, however, needs stimulating experiences from home and school or it will not unfold. These books are designed to help teachers provide the stimulating curricula that will nurture this potential in school. The units presented in this series are based on research into how these students actually think differently from their peers and how they use their learning styles and potential not merely to develop intellectual expertise, but to move beyond expertise to the production of new ideas.

The Social Studies book includes units that ask students to explore the struggles of America's first permanent English settlement in Jamestown, hold an African economic summit, study various Supreme Court cases and primary source documents, and create a Civil War documentary that views the war from the aspect of a person living in a particular state.

Elaine West:

As a college student exactly feel bored to help reading. If their teacher inquired them to go to the library or even make summary for some book, they are complained. Just little students that has reading's internal or real their passion. They just do what the professor want, like asked to go to the library. They go to right now there but nothing reading critically. Any students feel that looking at is not important, boring and also can't see colorful images on there. Yeah, it is for being complicated. Book is very important in your case. As we know that on this age, many ways to get whatever we wish. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this Challenging Units for Gifted Learners: Social Studies: Teaching the Way Gifted Students Think can make you sense more interested to read.
